The Lincolns and Boones.

The following is from the first installment of Nicolay and Hay's authorized Life of Lincoln, in the Century Magazine for November: "It was ten years after the death of the President that his son learned the probable circumstances under which the pioneer Lincoln removed to the west, and the intimate relations which subsisted between his family and the most celebrated man in early western annals. There is little doubt that it was on account of his association with the famous Daniel Boone that Abraham Lincoln went to Kentucky. The families had for a century been closely allied. By the will of Mordecai Lincoln, to which reference has been made, his 'loving friend and neighbor,' George Boone, was made a trustee to assist his widow in the care of the property. Squire Boone, the father of Daniel, was one of the appraisers who made the inventory of Mordecai Lincoln's estate. One of the numerous Abraham Lincolns married a Miss Anna Boone in 1760. The intercourse between the families was kept up after the Boones had removed to North Carolina and John Lincoln had gone to Virginia. Abraham Lincoln, son of John and grandfather of the President, was married in North Carolina. The inducement which led him to leave Virginia, where his standing and his fortune were assured, was, in all probability, his intimate family relations with the great explorer, the hero of the new country of Kentucky, the land of fabulous richness and unlimited adventure. At a time when the eastern States were ringing with the fame of the mighty hunter, who was then in the prime of his manhood, and in the midst of those achievements which will forever render him one of the most picturesque heroes in all our annals, it is not to be wondered at that his own circle of friends should have caught the general enthusiasm, and felt the desire of emulate his career. . . . .

"Everything we know of the emigrant Abraham Lincoln goes to show that it was under the auspices of this most famous of our pioneers that he set out from Rockingham County to make a home for himself and his young family in that wild region which Boone was wresting from its savage holder. He was not without means of his own. He took with him funds enough to enter an amount of land which would have made his family rich if they had retained it. The county records show him to have been the possessor of a domain of some seventeen hundred acres. There is still in existence the original warrant, dated March 4, 1780, for four hundred acres of land, for which the pioneer had paid 'into the publick Treasury one hundred and sixty pounds current money,' and a copy of the surveyor's certificate, giving the metes and bounds of the property on Floyd's Fork which remained for many years in the hands of Mordecai Lincoln, the pioneer's eldest son and heir. The name was misspelled 'Linkhorn' by a blunder of the clerk in the land-office, and the error was perpetuated in the subsequent record."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S ANCESTRY

Lincolns in Virginia and New England Have Common Physical Traits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Wharton Dickinson says that he agrees with "Inquirer" as to the doubt of the New England ancestry of President Lincoln. This of course is his right, but will Mr. Dickinson furnish from records proof to the contrary? If he can do so I will be the first to hail him.

Mr. Dickinson is in error when he says that the President's "personal physique" is against the New England origin. I fail to see upon what he bases this claim, for there are to-day in the Lincolns of New England just such "rawboned," "gaunt" individuals, and some bear a strong family resemblance to the President.

At a Lincoln family reunion held at Taunton, Mass., in 1909, there were Lincolns present from Virginia, and the resemblance of some of them to their Massachusetts relatives was so striking as to stature, manner, and looks, that their immediate relatives said they were enough alike to be twin brothers; and these Virginia Lincolns were descended from Thomas, the brother of the Abraham of Berks County, Penn., who Mr. Dickinson says was a friend of his great-grandfather.

The Abraham Lincoln mentioned by Mr. Dickinson was the posthumous son of Mordecai Lincoln of New Jersey, and later of Berks County, Penn., and who it is claimed was the son of Mordecai Lincoln of Bridgewater, Mass. Abraham Lincoln of Berks County, Penn., married Anna Boone, a cousin of Daniel Boone, and the family record of this Lincoln-Boone family is still in the possession of the Lincolns of Berks County.

Rev. L. A. Warren
Zionsville, Ind.,

My dear Rev. Warren:

I have recently been in correspondence with my cousin Mr. S. C. Kirkpatrick & Mr O. M. Mather of Hodgenville, Kentucky with respect to the early records pertaining to Alexander Merrifield. Mr Mather stated he could not easily furnish me a plat of Alexander Merrifield's farm showing its relationship to the Lincoln farm but stated that you had made a plat of various farms & that possibly you could give me this & what I wanted. Alexander Merrifield & his wife Rachel Boone were early settlers in Hardin County - they married in Kentucky in 1787. Their son, my grand father born in '94 or '95 saved the youthful Abraham from drowning in Nolin's creek & later moved the Lincoln family to Indiana. His name was Col. Fielding Merrifield.

I will deeply appreciate your courtesies in this matter & will gladly avail myself should the occasion arise, of reciprocating your kindness.

Sincerely
George E Merrifield

P.S. Please let me know where I can secure your book on Lincoln. GEM

Dear sir:

I am just home from a lecture tour and find your letter in my mailand regret that my immediate departure on another itinerary will not allow me to do more this time than acknowledge your letter.

At my earliest convenience I shall be glad to give you the plats of the Merrifield farm adjacent to the Lincoln Birthplace farm and also another 100 acre plat close by the larger tract.

I was interested to note that Alexander Merrifield's wife was a Boone. This had escaped me. I haver gathered much material on the Boone family in Kentucky with the idea in view of zomeday of putting it in print.

The book for which you enquire is "Lincoln's Parentage and Childhood," and is published by the Century Company, 353 Fourth Ave. NewYork. It sells for $3.50 The names of both Allexander and John Merrifield are found therein.

Regret the lack of time to answer your request in detail.

My dear Mr Warren:

Thank you for your letter of the 15th inst. I note you will let me have the plats which I will greatly appreciate along with any other data or sources of data of Alexander Merrifield or his connection. Did I mention that Fielding Merrifield my grand father had saved Lincoln from drowning in Nolin's Creek & that he had moved the Lincoln's to Indiana? While I was in Kentucky a month or so ago with Hon. Wm Boone Douglass, president of the Boone Family Association and Dr Archibald Henderson, a connection told me that he understood that my great grand father Rev Geo Lawson Rogers who lived for a while at E-town had married Thomas Lincoln to Sarah Bush Johnston. I know nothing as to this but you undoubtedly know who the minister was.

Am interested in your Boone material. You would unquestionably find a good demand for the book you have in contemplation. I have been reading, with enjoyment, your book on Lincoln's Parentage which I got to-day.

Mr. George E. Merrifield

Baltimore, Md.

My dear Mr. Merrifield:

This Thanksgiving morning is the first time since I wrote you in October that I have had time to go through my manuscripts and give you a part of the information you wanted.

I am lecturing for the Indiana Lincoln Union which keeps me away from home all the time except Sundays and holidays. Sundays I am busy in the pulpit. The Lincoln Union you know is raising $1,260,000. for a memorial to Lincoln and his mother at Lincoln City, Ind.

Even now with my other correspondence I can only spare time to give you just a few notes, and the plats you desire. I will have to ask you not to use them publicly as it is to appear in a monogram which I hope to get off the press soon.

I am confident that the Lincolns were much more closely related to the Boones than history has recorded. I have a certain theory about this connection but have not been able to give sufficient time to this phase to speak with any authority. It is sufficient to say that at present we have positive evidence on only one of Abraham Lincoln's four grandparents.

I am making a careful compilation of the early Boone Families in Indiana and hope to give them some space in my Indiana History of the Lincolns.

There is a suit over a land transaction which shows John Merrifield to have made an affidavit in the home of Dr. Samuel Merrifield who lived in Bloomfield, Ky in 1820.

From a deed filed in the LaRue County court house I should judge the following were the John Welsh. Alexander Merrifield (Alexander) who sold his property to John Welsh ; Nancy Stewart, John Merrifield and Sally Merrifield his wife, Joseph Welsh, Elizabeth welsh, JohnWelsh, Winton Welsh, Debora welsh widow, and two heirs of John Welsh, deceased.

After I am through with this campaign I may have time to give you more information,

Respectfully,

Dear Mr Warren:

I greatly appreciate your letter with its inclosures which I received yesterday morning. Gabriel Kirkpatrick & Alexander Merrifield were brother-in-laws, having married Boone sisters. Am enclosing a letter I wrote to S. C. Kirkpatrick at Hodgenville. Please return it to me. During the Revolutionary war Sam'l Boone Jr (a first cousin of Daniel Boone) conducted a gun lock factory at Fredericktown Md. & Squire Boone (Daniel's brother) afterwards induced him to go to Kentucky. Jane Foulke Hughes, his wife has left a most remarkable genealogy. Two Merrifield brothers Dr Sam'l Boone Merrifield & Fielding Merrifield married the only two daughters of Dr Jno Berries. The latter was one of Kentucky's most learned men. He died in 1851.

Hope you may furnish me more information including the dates of the Merrifields' acquisition of the property on the plat. Where could I get the full testimony in the land suit.

Would like for you to visit me sometime.

Thanking you for your courtesies.

My dear Dr, Mayfield:

Your reply to my request about information relative to the family of Josiah Boone is before me.

Sometime ago you sent me a on page printed sketch of the line of the Boone family from which you are descended and I was glad to have it.

It does not, however go into the early history of Josiah Boone and tell who he married or touch upon the Pennsylvania or Virginia residence to any degree.

I am especially anxious to learn if they came in touch with the Lincolns in the Agusta County, Va. residence and though possibly you might have some further evidence than appears on the aforesaid printed sheet.

I have published several different booklets on Lincoln subjects and am enclosing one "Lincoln's Log Cabin." On the last page of this booklet you will find a list of the publications. I shall be pleased to send you such copies as you may want.

Lincoln and Boone Relative Recalls Martyr's Funeral

Widow, 74, Tells How Train of Sorrow Arrived in Phila.

The firm friendship of two American families whose most prominent members were Abraham Lincoln and Daniel Boone, was recalled today by Mrs. Sarah Boone Lavender, 74-year-old widow, of 1522 Ritner street, who is directly related to both.

The 122d anniversary today of Lincoln's birth also revived Mrs. Lavender's childhood memories of the martyred President's funeral. Her father, a cousin of Lincoln, held her in his arms while standing with hundreds who wept as the funeral train passed them in Fairmount Park on its way to the heart of the city.

"The Lincolns and Boones must have been friends in England before they even thought of coming to America," Mrs. Lavender said. "I often heard my father tell that there was a special bond between the two families never to neglect each other.

"They first settled in Massachusetts. Later some of them came down to Pennsylvania and settled in Exeter, where each family built a homestead.

"The Lincoln place was built first and it is said that William Penn's sons laid out the plans. Later the Boones built their house. For generations the two homesteads never changed hands.

"The Lincolns and Boones intermarried. My father, John Abram Boone, a cousin of Abraham Lincoln, was born in the old Boone homestead. I never saw the place, but as a very small child I remember visiting the Lincoln homestead at Exeter. It was just an old-fashioned farm house built of stone.

"In Philadelphia we lived at Mount Pleasant, in a house now torn down. From here it was but a short distance to Belmont, where Lincoln's funeral train stopped for an engine before proceeding to the city on April 22, 1865.

MRS. SARAH BOONE LAVENDER

"I was 8 years old at the time. My father held me high in his arms above the crowd of weeping spectators that thronged the track. He was weeping too. Although he never met his famous cousin, he had the greatest admiration for him.

"Afterwards my father walked to Independence Hall to see the martyred President lying in state. 'Abraham Lincoln was such a good man,' he told us, 'it is too bad he was taken when the country needed him most'."

Dear Doctor Warren:-

Mrs Foster and I heard your ceremonies of the Dedication of the Lincoln Statue, the "Hoosier Youth"it was beautiful and simple in the perfect Lincoln spirit, we both thank you.

In your Lincoln Lore #174 last paragraph re Lincoln's Grandmother.

In following up your request for research I have come accros a reference to an old Quaker Marriage Certificate it is in a letter about 50 years old, the reference reads:

Marriage certificate of Samuel Hughes to Margaret May Githens, at Exeter, Berks County, Pennsylvania. 12th mo, 10th, 1755.

This certificate is signed by several members of the Boone family, one of whom moved out west and whose daughter was the Grandmother of our martyred President Abraham Lincoln.

This is posible a lead worth following the chances are that the records of Exeter Meeting is now at Swarthmore College, if I hear any more about it I shall let you know.

Sincerely yours

B. S. Foster

I have not made any attempt to sell the Lincoln Miniature, which I wrote you about some time ago, the summer months are not very good to dispose of such articles, if you are interested in it now - I shall send it to you.

Thank you for your reference to the marriage certificate in Berks County in 1755.

Indeed we would be pleased to learn something further about the information that one of those signing as witness to this marriage was the grandmother of the martyred president. That is the very quest on which we are working.

We will write to Swarthmore College to see if we can learn something further about it.

We are not in any position as yet to think about acquiring the Lincoln ministure which you have in your possession.

Dear Sir:

We have been advised that you might have in your files at Swarthmore College a certificate of marriage of Samuel Hughes to Margaret May Githens at Exeter, Berks County, Pennsylvania, on December 10, 1755.

We are particularly interested in the signatures of those who names appear on the certificate as it is alleged that one of the signers was the grandmother of Abraham Lincoln.

The enclosed bulletins will suggest to you how deeply interested we are in any facts pertaining to this question. Any help you might give us will be very gratefully appreciated.

Louis A. Warren, Director,

Esteemed Friend:—

We have just received the ancient record books of Exeter Monthly Meeting, & I began the search for the name of Lincoln's grandmother.

Neither on the marriage certificate of Sam'l Hughes & Margaret May Sithers (1755) nor of Sam'l Hughes & Elizabeth Willits (1747) does any signature of Bersheba or Herring or Lincoln appear.

Are there any other names I should look for? Would you like to have all the witnesses' names on the 1755 certificate?

I send you this short note, so as not to seem too slow. Later, if you wish, I can search in the Minute books & in other marriage certificates, for the name, — if you will give it to me exactly. Are there any other family names beside Herring that you'd suggest?

My dear Mr. Hayes:

I cannot tell you how pleased I am to learn that the record books of the Exeter Monthly Meeting are in your possession.

I have felt for a long while that possibly here was the most valuable source for our discovery of the grandmother of Abraham Lincoln. Enclosed you will please find a marked copy of one of the bulletins, which I believe will indicate that my own thought is that a member of the Boone family was Abraham Lincoln's grandmother.

It also appears that there is a possibility of the Hanks family having migrated through Pennsylvania. We know that some of the early Hankses were Quakers and we are positive that in some way Lincoln's ancestry was associated with this group.

We are placing the name of your library on our mailing list to receive Lincoln Lore, which is sent gratis to about three thousand Lincoln students in America, and we are also forwarding as complete a back file as we now have in our possession.

If you have facilities for photostating at your college we should like very much to have copies of some of the earlier records which give the name of the Lincoln and Boone families.

Will you kindly advise if the Exeter Monthly Meeting records are to be deposited in your archives, or whether or not they are merely loaned for a period.

Dear Mr. Warren:

I am much pleased to have your cordial letter, and the promise of Lincoln Lore. A large batch of L.L. has arrived; we place these on permanent file, & they are going to be a valued addition to our archives. Thank you kindly.

You have started me on a most interesting quest. To give you an idea of what I so far find in Exeter Records, searching for the names Lucy, Bersheba, Boone, Hank, Hanks, Herring, Lincoln, Shipley, Sparrow, - the best find is this:

Eleventh Month 15, 1770, Abraham Lincoln signed as a witness the marriage certificate of Judah

Boone

Boone & Hannah Lee, at Exeter Meeting in Berks County, Penna., along with 14 witnesses named Boone, & others.

A later marriage, James Boone & Rebekah Thomas (1814) was witnessed by various Boones, but perhaps too recently for your purpose. Between what dates shall I confine my searches?

In 1760, Samuel Boone married Rachel Coles, with 10 Boones among signing witnesses.

These Certificates are each 2 pages wide, written lengthwise of the page & will photograph well.

Still better, in the way of clear large script, are various quaint minutes of ye Monthly Meeting concerning Boones, dates 1743, '50, '53, '64; as, George Boone acknowledges having "drunk more than was needful or Commendable"; Josiah Boone acknowledges his "Outgoings in Marriage"; Joseph Boone regrets "drinking too freely of some Strong Liquors"; Daniel Boone ~~asks~~ is received from Haddonfield Meeting; etc. Joseph Hank is mentioned.

Sarah

Sarah Lincoln marries Wm. Boone (1748); Ann Lincoln is mentioned.

We have no photostat machine; but we have a good photographer at nearby Chester, who furnishes excellent shiny photos for reproducing in books, &c., at $1 per page.

We never allow any MS to leave our building, or we could have photostating done in Philadelphia at much lower rates.

If you could give me an idea of about how many pages you'd want photo'ed, doubtless I can get a lower price for you.

A set of fac-similes of portions of these old records, with their flavor of old times, & their honest sincerity & pious reflections, would enrich any collection.

I hope to find other pages to report to you, mostly or to Boones. If I search specially for witnesses' names & names of persons who underwent Meeting action (like those bibulous but repentant Boones), what exactly shall I search for?

Yours truly,
J. Russell Hayes

Dear Mr. Warren —

Edward L. Parvin, of Cynwyd, Penna., who is descended from several of the old Quaker families in Berks County, Penna., tells me he thinks President Lincoln's Grandfather Lincoln was married in Virginia. As he is of Lincoln descent himself, he would seem to be in the way of knowing the facts. You may care to write to him, & send him Lincoln Lore pertaining to this point.

If you decide to have photos of some of our records of Lincolns & Booths here, I can have it done for you at any time.

Dear Mr. Hayes:

I hope you will pardon my failure to answer your previous letter before this but I have been wanting to find time to make a thorough study of just the items I need most. This I have not had an opportunity to do as yet but will be very glad to make my needs known as soon as possible.

Mr. Parbin is correct in his statement that President Lincoln's grandfather was married in Virginia. The date was 1770. Inasmuch as he had only lived there for two or three years previous to his marriage it does not seem improbable that he would have married some one from the many Berks County families who migrated with the Lincolns.

It was my thought that we might find associated with the Lincolns some family that could be traced into the Shenandoah Valley, such as Josiah Boone.

I will be very glad to write to Mr. Parbin and send him some of the literature on the Lincoln family.

Dear Dr. Warren—

Thanks to you, the Novemb^r. Lincoln Tores arrived next day after yr. letter.

I admire the valuable items you bring to light in these pages, & especially in #189 yr. striking way of setting forth the high points in the Second Inaugural, making almost a blank verse ode. How much Lincoln,—lover of style as he was,—wd. have liked it!

I try to think of any tor—sible ways I can give you any the least assistance from the precious old Exeter Meeting records. As you incline to think perhaps A. L. the elder married a Boone, I've gone thru the Minutes of the Meeting up to his marriage year, & enclose the result. As the Boone girls nearly all married others, it cuts that many out; but their sisters remain possible for your theory. Further search might give some of their names chiefly as signers as witnesses on wedding certificates.

I'd be glad to know as to the cause of yr very interesting conjecture.

Cordially yours

RECORDS OF BOONE AND LINCOLN FAMILIES ARE PLACED IN LIBRARY

Accounts Contain Valuable Data For Students of Early American Life

Valuable Friends' Meeting records which have recently been placed in the Friends' Historical Library have an interest for students of American biography as they contain original data on the relatives of Abraham Lincoln and of Daniel Boone. They are the 18th century manuscript records of Exeter Monthly Meeting of Berks county, Pennsylvania.

Tell of Lincoln and Boone

In an account of his own life, Lincoln wrote: "The Lincoln family were originally Quakers, though in later years they have fallen away from the peculiar habits of that people." In Berks county lived various members of the Boone and Lincoln lines, and some of them intermarried. The Boones were staunch Friends, and were close neighbors of the Lincolns in Pennsylvania, Virginia and Kentucky. In 1760 Abraham Lincoln married Ann Boone, a cousin of Daniel Boone; whereas this Abraham's sister Sarah married William Boone. Abraham and Sarah were great-great uncle and aunt of President Lincoln. These facts have been brought out by the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, at whose building was dedicated on September 16, 1932, the bronze statue of "Abraham Lincoln, the Hoosier Youth," by Paul Manship.

Faults of Pioneers Revealed

These old names acquire fresh interest in the pages of the ancient record books of Exeter. In the volume of marriage certificates appear as witnesses at weddings between 1743 and 1778 the names of Abraham, Ann, Benjamin, Martha, Mary, Mordecai and Sarah Lincoln, and of scores of Boones. The minute-books of the monthly meeting throw light on the weakness as well as the excellence of those far off Quakers. Thus, in 1750, George Boone makes humble acknowledgment of having "Drunk more than was Commendable or Needful"; and in 1753, Josiah Boone confesses to "Drinking too freely of some Strong Liquors."

Lincoln's Grandmother Unknown

It is a curious fact, indicative of pioneer days with their scarcity of official records, that only one of Lincoln's grandparents has as yet been identified —the grandfather for whom he was named, for whom Daniel Boone took up 1500 acres in Kentucky and who was killed by the Indians. Who was this Abraham's wife is one of the problems now before the Lincoln Historical Foundation; and the Director, Dr. Louis A. Warren, has asked J. Russell Hayes, librarian of the Friends' Historical Library, to search the Quaker records for a possible clue. She might have been Bersheba Herring or Hannah Winters or Elizabeth Winters, or one of the Boones. Dr. Warren writes as to the Exeter meeting records: "I have felt for a long while that possibly here was the most valuable source for our discovery of the grandmother of Abraham Lincoln .... my own thought is that a member of the Boone Family was Lincoln's grandmother." Thus far the search has yielded none of these names, though revealing interesting sidelights on these two sturdy American pioneer families.

This is from our college weekly, The Phoenix, of Dec. 6.

Perhaps you will kindly criticize it, so that I may write a better article for our Quaker weekly in Philadelphia, The Friends Intelligencer.

Among its readers may be some of the living Boones & Lincolns who can aid our search.

In Lincoln Lore #171, under 1778, is it certain there was a second marriage? If so, then should I omit Bersheba here, or entirely? Have you other possible names to suggest, or a first name for a possible Boone bride?

My dear Mr. Hayes:

I guess you will begin to think I am very inappreciative of your interest in the quest I am working on in the Lincoln family.

There are two kinds of letter that come to my desk, those that can be answered immediately and those which require some research work, and the last type some times go many days before receiving an answer and yours has gone for several weeks.

I thought I might be able to get to Swarthmore, Pennsylvania this month, but I will not get farther than Pittsburg.

I read with interest your article in the College Weekly of December 2.

I do not with your article, although I think perhaps you might stress the idea that we are quite certain that Regina Lincoln was the widow of the Pioneer Abraham Lincoln and that the possibility of his marrying earlier infers that there were two marriages, the first one probably to some young lady from Pennsylvania, although it is true the marriage took place in Virginia.

Just as soon as I can find time I am going to prepare a special Lincoln Lore bulletin on the Boone family and their relation to the Lincoln family. This will give us an opporunity to get the whole subject before the people.

I hope you will not feel that I did not appreciate the records which you forwarded about the Boone family and they will be kept in mind as we prepare this Lincoln Lore.

I cannot tell you how I appreciate the fact that these old records are in the hands of Swarthmore College where they will be well kept.

Very sincerely yours,

Reading further in records of Exeter Meeting, I find a marriage certificate (Thomas Lee m. Mary Boone, 1778) witnessed by

It may be of no use to you, but I thot I'd send it anyway.

You kindly put us on your mailing list for Lincoln Lore.

Perhaps it is not issued regularly, but no copies have come for several weeks.

Dear Mr. Warren:

In accordance with our conversation of yesterday at the Rotary Club, I am writing you in reference to the Lincoln-Boone connection.

You will recall that I sought information from you in reference to what particular book or history contained the records of the inter-marriages between the Boone's and the Lincoln's, as referred to in your talk before the Club.

As I advised you, I am a direct descendent of the Boone's. My great grandfather, Ovid Boone, who was the son of Ovid Boone, Sr., was born near Lexington, My., in the early part of the last century, where he married one Ruth Baltimore, a descendent of the famous Baltimore family, my grandfather being Phillip Boone, son of said Ovid Boone.

I am very much interested in the family connection, and would appreciate any information which you can give me in reference to the details of such inter-marriage.

Again congratulating you upon the splendid, fine address which you gave the Club, and with kindest regards and best wishes, I am

My dear Mr. Boone:

In a history of the Lincoln family written by Waldo Lincoln of Wooster, Massachusetts there appears the names of 42 members of the Boone family who were related to the Lincolns.

Enclosed you will please find a list of the Boone-Lincoln marriages of which I spoke while in South Bend.

You will also please find enclosed two copies of our Lincoln Lore bulletin, which I think you will like to have, giving the reason for my theory that Abraham Lincoln's grandmother on his paternal side was a Boone.

Dear Madam:

I have been very much interested in reading your letter because it reviews again the tradition which has been extant for many years that Abraham Lincoln descended from the Boones.

The truth is, we never have been able to learn who Abraham Lincoln the pioneer did marry in 1770. The enclosed bulletins which were published some time ago will give you some information as to what has been done in the way of research by this Foundation in trying to establish the connection of the Lincoln family in Virginia and especially to learn who was the wife of Abraham Lincoln the pioneer and the mother of his first four children.

You would make a very fine contribution indeed to our knowledge about the Lincolns if you could supply documentary evidence which would show Abraham Lincoln the pioneer to have been married to Elizabeth Winters, daughter of Ann Boone Winters, and I am sure we would appreciate any information you might be able to send us with respect to this. Will you please circulate the enclosed bulletins among your relatives to see if they can be of any assistance in helping us to untangle this puzzle.

DAY MORNING, OCTOBER 1, 1935

Girard's Talk Of the Day

A NICE verbal bouquet, which I modestly here omit, came with a request of Mrs. Pearl S. Oles, Lewistown, Pa., for information about the Berks county Lincolns.

Mordecai Lincoln and his wife Mary had migrated to Pennsylvania from New England.

Their son Abraham, paternal ancestor of the President, was born in Exeter township, Berks county, in 1736, a short time after his father's death.

Abraham Lincoln was a conspicuous citizen of Berks for many years.

He was county commissioner, both before and during three Revolutionary War years.

He was also what was called a sub-lieutenant in that county, having been appointed in 1777.

* * * *

THEN after the Revolution Abraham Lincoln was a State Assemblyman for four years.

More important than that, he was a member of the Pennsylvania State Convention in 1787 which ratified the Constitution of the United States, fresh from the hands of the illustrious framers in Philadelphia.

But Lincoln was opposed to the Constitution and voted with the minority against ratification.

Two years later Berks county sent Lincoln to the convention which framed the Constitution for this Commonwealth in 1789.

Until then, the chief executive officer of this State was called President, Franklin having held that office when past 80 years of age.

* * * *

ABRAHAM LINCOLN married Anne Boone, a near neighbor and a first cousin of the immortal Daniel Boone.

The latter was a Berks county boy, too, and he did not make the long trek to Virginia until he was six feet tall and 19 years of age.

To use a Berks county expression, the Boones were "better fixed" than the Lincolns.

Squire Boone, Daniel's father, had crossed over from Bucks to Berks and became a prosperous farmer. The old Boone homestead as well as the Lincoln, not far away, are still standing.

Boones were Quakers and Lincolns were Congregationalists, as became their New England ancestry.

The fact that Anne Boone married a Lincoln "out of meeting" was duly recorded on the minutes of the old Exeter Meeting.

* * * *

FIVE daughters and four sons were born to Abraham and Anne Lincoln, and among the latter was Thomas, who, like the Boones, migrated to Kentucky.

He was the father of President Abraham Lincoln.

Grandfather Abraham died in January, 1806, or three years before the birth of his famous grandson.

President Lincoln's Aunt Mary married Joseph Boone, thus forming another alliance between those two remarkable Berks county families.

You will find in that teeming land today many reminders of a historic past and very happily among them the homes of the Lincolns and the Boones.

Did Lincoln Come Of Quaker Stock?

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Did Abraham Lincoln spring from Pennsylvania stock?

The Emancipator himself records "a vague tradition" that he did.

A Lincoln letter in the collection of Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, dealer in rare books and manuscripts, reads in part:

"We have a vague tradition—that my great-grandfather went from Pennsylvania to Virginia, and that he was a Quaker — further back than this I have never heard anything."

The letter was written in 1848 to Solomon Lincoln, a Massachusetts genealogist who sought a link between his family and the future President's.

Dr. Louis A. Warren,
Fort Wayne, Ind.

My dear Dr. Warren:

Some years ago there appeared in the Lexington (Ky.) Herald an article dealing with the Bryan Family, in which it was stated that the will of John Lincoln, great-grandfather of the President, mentions a grand-daughter- Hannah Bryan.

As family historian for my clan, I have tried to identify this Bryan who married Hannah Lincoln, but without success.

I should like to know whether or not he was of the Yadkin Valley Bryans, who were the neighbors and kinsmen of Daniel Boone, and who founded the stockaded hamlet on Elkhorn, known as Bryan's Station.

My friend Col. C. Frank Dunn of Lexington suggests that you may be able to throw some light on the matter.

Any help you may be good enough to lend, will be most acceptable.

I regret to have been so long in answering your query with respect to the Lincoln Bryan contact. Of course it is well known the Lincolns intermarried with the Boones at leaston five different occasions and I am sending you a little pamphlet which may help you to determine just how the contact with the Bryans is made through Hannah Lincoln. We will be pleased to follow through further if you can give me some definite clue that would be helpful.

Dear Dr. Warren:

Through the National Archives, the Congressional Library, the DAR Library and the aid of a reputable geneologist, Mrs.C.E. Shirk of Harrisburg,Pa. I have unearthed some facts about the Lincoln ancestry which may interest you.

Number one. Abstract of a will in Volume XIV page 27 of the A bstracts of Wills of Northumberland County contained in the publications of the Pennsylvania Geneological Society.

William Winter of Loyal Sock township County of Northumberland. Will dated June 18,1794 proved August 2,1794. Wife Eleanor to have my Negro Tom Henry Miller husband of my daughter Hannah. Daughter Jane Campbell the house and garden she now holds. Daughter Phebe Jones and her children two hundred acres adjoining the tract I gave my son William. Thomas Linkorn my son-in-law. Daughter Ann wife of George Crawford. Sons John,James,Elias and Archibald. Daughters Sarah,Mary,Elizabeth and Lucy. Grandson Thomas Linkorn a Bond. Land in Kentucky patented in my name. Sons William Johnand James. Executors son John Winter and William Hammond Esq...."

Number two. Old Kentucky entries and deeds by Jillson."Fayette entries. William Winters 1,500 acres. Book 2 Page 247 entry date March 15,1783. Licking. Surveyed."

Number three. History of Center and Clinton Counties by John Blair Linn (son I believe of the early preacher James Linn). An account of the death of Lucy Winters Potter in 1875. ..."Mrs.Potter was a member of a large and rather remarkable family, her father having been born in 1728,married in 1747, died in 1794,children to the number of nineteen being born to him, the eldest in 1748, the youngest in 1790, their births extending over a period of forty-two years.

"William Winters, the father of the deceased came from Berks County to Northumberland, now Lycoming County, in the year 1778 having purchased the farm lately known as the Judge Grier farm, near what is called Newberry but now within the corporate limits of Williamsport. Mr.Winters was twice married.

His first wife was Ann Boone, a sister of Colonel Daniel Boone,famous in the early annals of Kentucky. His marriage took place in the year 1747 in the then province of Virginia. By this union there were issue eleven children,four males and seven females. His eldest daughter Hannah married in Rockingham Virginia, Abraham Lincoln, the grandfather of ex-President Lincoln. Shortly before his death, Lincoln, who was killed by the Indians, visited his father-in-law at what is now Williamsport and John Winters his brother-in-law, returned with him to Kentucky whither Mr. Lincoln had moved after his marriage, John being deputed to look after some lands taken up by Colonel Boone and his father.

They traveled on foot from the farm by a route leading from where Bellefonte now is, the "Indian path from Bald Eagle to Frankstown". John Winters visited his sister, Mrs.Potter in 1843 and wandering to the hill upon which the academy is situated, a messenger was sent for him, his friends thinking he had lost himself, but he was only looking for the path he and Lincoln had trod sixty years before and pointed out with his finger the course from Spring Creek along Buffalo Run to where it crosses the "lone limestone valley" as being their route.

Upon the death of Mr.Winter's first wife in the year 1771, he again in 1774 married. His sedond wife was Ellen Campbell who bore him eight children three males and five females of which the latter, the subject of this notice was the youngest. The father of Mrs.Potter died in 1794 and in 1795 Mrs.Ellen Winters his widow was licensed by the courts of Lycoming County to keep "a house of entertainment" where Williamsport now is, where she lived and reared her own children as well as several of her step-children. Here all her daughters were married.... Ellen becoming the wife of Thomas Burnside...who was finally a Justice of the Supreme Court. .....

My father says that his grandmother-- who incidentally received a sum on the tardy settlement of the Joseph Ball estate-- told him that her grandmother Jane Winters was quite ashamed of her sister's marriage to Abraham Lincoln whom she regarded as part of a no-good family and that she much preferred to dwell on her father's second marriage to Ellen or Eleanor Campbell, daughter of John Campbell and Anna Ball and her own marriage to James Campbell(same parents) because Anna Ball was a sister or half-sister of Mary Ball Washington...See Gans' Pennsylvania Pioneer and Hayden's Virginia Geneologies.)

The Berks County tax lists indicate that William Winters was between 1767 and 1781 a man of some substance as the times went.

I have done considerable work in North Carolina as the maternal ancestry of Lincoln came from the Catawba River country.

Indeed I would be pleased to have anything that you may have related to Nancy Hanks as we have not as yet gathered positive evidence in respect to her parentage although it is the general assumption that she is the daughter of James Hanks and Lucy Shipley Hanks.

Dear Sir,

Following is data collected regarding maternal ancestry of A. Lincoln which I have picked up from time to time with ref. as to where I found it.

On p. 518 of Hoffman's "Our Kin" (very rare book now - if you would like to borrow said book try Sheriff John Hoyle of Warren, Ark., a kinsman of mine.)

" Jesse Holland b. Ap. 10, 1786 mar. Martha Jane Hanks b. Sept 21, 1791. She was daughter of Richard (Dickie) Hanks & Phebe Hayes. Richard was brother of Nancy Hanks, mother of Pres. Abr. Lincoln. Jesse died Ap. 29, 1856 and Martha in July 19, 1857. Both are buried in Long Creek Churchyard near Dallas, N.C.

The children of Jesse & Martha Hanks are:

1. Robert b. Mar. 12, 1811 mar. Eliz. Rhyne, daughter of Constable Mike Rhyne
2. Julius b. Jan 20, 1813 mar. Mary (Polly) Rhyne, daughter of Peter Rhyne 2nd.
3. Lawson b. Nov. 30, 1815, d.s.
4. Lodema b. Ap. 22, 1820 mar. David A. Jenkins May 20th 1841
5. Marlena b. Sept 21, 1823 mar. Andrew Smith
6. Elmina b. Oct 24, 1825 mar. Ephraim Linberger

8. Ephraim b. Oct 2, 1831 mar. Julia Courts, daughter of Dan'l W. Courts, State Treas. of N.C.
9. Isaac b. Oct 16, 1829 d.s in Ark.

These are called Long Creek Hollands.

I suggest you try to reach some of descendants of above and particularly des. of Andrew #7 who lived in Logan & Franklin Co., Ark. His children were: Emma Belle m. Columbus Hunter; Mattie m. David Ross; Claudius m. Louisa Clem; Sidney d.s; Isaac. m. Sibilla Mills; Alma m Geo Clevinger; Allie s; John Dacus s; Marcella m. Thos. Clevinger; Shelby s.; Marmaduke s..

As to the Crawford kin of A. Lincoln, here it is:
Patrick Crawford mar. Sally Wilson. He was member of Capt James Allen's Co. Sept 2, 1757. Wil proven in county (Rockbridge Va.) Court term Dec. 18, 1787 and personal estate including slaves amounted to about $8,216. His farm passed to John H., his descent, Of this union eleven children were born. The 8th was George Crawford who married Nancy Winter June 23, 1789. Her parents were Wm and Ann Boone Winter, the latter an aunt of Daniel Boone. Elizabeth Winter, sister of Nancy mar. Abraham Lincoln ~~(1778-1851)~~ (1744-1786) grandfather of Pres. Lincoln. It is said that this couple was killed by Indians. See: Roosevelts' "Winning of the West". Geo. Crawford and wife Nancy Winter had 8 daughters, no sons. However, brothers of Geo. named John, & William left descendants named Crawford. Especially is son of John & Rebecca Allen, daughter of Capt James Allen named Major James noted since his descend. inherited Patrick Crawford estate. Major James mar. Cynthia McClung of the powerful McClung Clan of Western Va.

Of the daughters of Geo. & Nancy Winters I have only this:

1. Nancy mar. John Miller
2. Hannah mar. Harry Miller
3. Sally was #2 wife James Bell
4. Jane #1 wife of Franklin Cue
5. Martha mar. Peter Hanger
6. Polly mar. James Bourland
7. Rebecca ~~mar. James Walker~~ d.s.
8. Margaret mar. James Walker died children

Another note regarding Nancy Hanks. She is said to have attended school in Pineville, N.C.

Tradition has it that near Whittier, N.C. near Smokemont & Newfound Gap nearby confluence of Minigo Creek & the Oconaluftee stood a log house in which Nancy Hanks, wife of Thomas Lincoln, gave birth to Abe. Lincoln. If true would make Lincoln a North Carolinian.

Beside Richard (Dick's) Hanks, Nancy is said to have had another brother named Joseph.

I do hope I have helped clear up some of mystery regarding Nancy Hanks. I do not believe the wild story connected with her name & think it a shame.

I would like to have any information you run across regarding Crawfords.

Thank you & very best wishes,

E J Thomas Clement

p3. Geo. Crawford had a sister named Mary who is said to have married a James Crawford in S.C. in Dec. 30, 1786. He died 1798 leaving widow + 6 children with 7th born few weeks after his death. I am particularly interested in S.C. Crawfords since they are my ancestors. My line is called Waxhaw Crawfords + settled on land both in NC + SC. right on line. My great great great great grandfather + mother were James + Janet Hutchinson Crawford. Janet was sister to Pres. Andrew Jackson's mother, Eliz. Hutchinson Jackson. I have not placed the above James Crawford who d. 1798 unless it is grandson of James + Janet named James, ~~who is~~ brother of my great great grandfather Alex-, ander, on whom I have been unable to gather any data as yet.

P.P.S. Patrick Crawford had a brother named Alexander who mar. Mary McPheeters. In 1764 Alex + Mary were massacred by Indians in Augusta Co., Va. All their children escaped - 11 children - 7 boys 4 girls. Of this group 1st child Wm mar. Rachel Sayer, said to be 1st cousin to Pres. Geo. Washington. Wm + Rachel had son, Alex, who married Rachel Lesslie cousin of Daniel Boone. This name Lesslie common name connected with Hutchinson (six) sisters - two of whom mar. ~~Lesslies~~ Lesslies.

Dear Mr. Warren,

Thank you very much for #24 of "The Lincoln Kinsman" and your interest in the Winters' connection to Lincoln family. I may be able to help out more on N.C. Hanks since quite a few of my relatives still live up that way who are interested in genealogy.

The Boone connection with Lincoln family was most interesting to me since it seems they have also been connected with Crawfords both of Va. lines + N.C.-S.C. line.

I am particularly interested in NC-SC line called the Waxhaw Crawfords. Waxhaw settlement was in disputed territory between N.C. + S.C. for many years and this branch of family is said to emigrated from Pa. about 1760 but I have since proved by records that they made their move sometime between 1750 and 1756 and date has pinned down now to 1754. Daniel Boone also moved to N.C. about this time. This Waxhaw line is one led by old Rev. Alexander Craighead and elder James Crawford who married Jannet Hutchinson, sister of Elizabeth Hutchinson Jackson, mother of Pres. Andrew Jackson. There were supposed to have been six beautiful Hutchinson sisters - two of whom married Leslies. Therefore I note with interest in Alexander (Mary McPheeters) Crawford line of Va. that their oldest son Wm b. 1744 d. 1792 (mar. Rachel Sayer, whose mother was 1st cousin to Geo. Washington) had a son Alexander who mar. Rachel Leslie cousin to Daniel Boone.

Old Rev. Alex. Craighead d. 1766 in Mecklenburg Co. N.C. and is called father of Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence since for many years before his death he made fiery speeches also before settling down in N.C. he traveled & preached over most of western Va. This ~~you'll find~~ line closely related to Waxhaw Crawfords.

You'll find a great deal of data on Alex & Mary McPheeters Crawford line in Princeton University Library under Rev. Edward Crawford b. 1746 d. 1833.

I can send you early Craighead data if wanted at anytime - if I remember correctly his family started here in Amer. in N.J. too.

I still would like to have any data on Crawford cousins of Lincoln if you run across anything.

I would like to have following of "The Lincoln Kinsman" — #2, #4, #17, #22 of past issues. Enclosed find 1.00. After I read these carefully perhaps I'll take a subscription.

Thank you again & let me know if I can help you & I'll let you know if I find out anything of interest to you. Sincerely

Dear Mr. Clement:

Thank you very much for your very interesting letter and I hope we eventully solve the problem of the Lincoln maternal ancestry.

I regret very much to say that the copies of the Kinsman which you ordered are all out of print except one, and that I send with my compliments, and also return your one dollar bill. The publication ceased during the war and has not been revived.

Dear Sir:

I have been referred to you by the Department of the Interior at Washington, D.C. regarding certain ancestry in the Lincoln line and I do hope you can help me out. I have made quite an extensive search of the Daniel Boone and Lincoln lines. What I especially want to know at this time is the names, birth dates, marriages, and deaths of the children of MARY LINCOLN who was born Sept. 15, 1761. This Mary came down from Mordecai's second wife Mary. She had Abraham b. 10/29/1736 who married Anne Boone b. 4/14/1737 who was the daughter of James Boone & Mary Foulke. And they had this MARY LINCOLN.
(bro.of Squire)

I was in touch with Mrs. Hazel Spraker, writer of the book on the Boone Family and she told me this Mary married Joseph Boone, 3d. She further stated this Joseph, 3d came down from Joseph, Jr., and he from Joseph, Sr. who was a brother of Squire Boone ~~brother of the~~ father of Daniel. In a book by Waldo Lincoln I found to my astonishment on page 112 it said: "Daughter Mary, born Sept. 15, 1761, probably never married, but nothing definite has been learned of her." As Mrs. Spraker gave it to me, everything seems to hook up correctly from several different angles on these certain marriages. Now the only child we know of who was born to Joseph Boone, 3d & Mary Lincoln was ANNA BOONE b. 5/31/1799 and she was mother's grandmother. This Anna married Jacob Kern. Anna definitely had other sisters and/or brothers because when her father died he left eleven grandchildren, but at that time Anna only had two children of her own. Mother says she knows positively her grandmother Anna had at least one sister as she had told her of a joke she had played on that sister when they were young girls. So this Mary Lincoln b. 1761 had AT LEAST two daughters, and since Anna was only around 30 yrs. old when her father died, it would prove the other daughters were unquestionably older than Anna to account for the 9 other grandchildren of her father.

Mother was born and raised at Warsaw, Indiana. The Jacob Kern whom Anna Boone married came down the line from Joseph, Sr. who had a son Isaac who married a Mary and this Mary married Michael Kern who had Jacob. Since this Isaac was a brother of Joseph, Jr. it made Anna Boone and Jacob Kern cousins.

If this MARY LINCOLN b. 1761 definitely did not have any children, then which Mary is the one who married a Boone and had ANNA b. 1799 et al???

Incidentally, we have in our possession an old iron kettle which came from way back in the Lincoln family which is over 250 years old. Mother knew it didn't come actually from President Lincoln's family, but from way back in the Lincolns, and this would all tally in with the fact that according to my searches we came down from Mordecai's second wife, whereas of course President Lincoln came down from his first wife Hannah Salter. I do hope and pray you can straighten me out on all this and that you can give me the names and dates of all these other children of Mary Lincoln besides this Anna Boone b. 1799. This Mary would have been about 38 yrs. old when Anna was born, so again it would seemingly prove that all her other children were probably born ahead of Anna.

Thanking you most kindly for this information, I am

Dear Mrs. Waltman:

Your letter arrives just as I am leaving on a one month's itinerary on the Pacific Coast and I do not feel that I will have time to go into the question of Mary Lincoln's lineage until I return. I will, however, at that time see what I can find with reference to your query.

My dear Mrs. Waltman:

It has been so many years ago which I gave an intensive research to the question of Lincoln's paternal ancestry that I am not in a position to speak with very much authority and the evidence which I gathered at that time. I have always felt however that we still need to find out whether or not Abraham Lincoln the grandfather of the President was married twice and if so what was the name of his first wife. You will please find enclosed some Lincoln Lores and other material that will give you some of the information which I gathered in those days so long ago. If you do get any further clues or run across any records which I might be able to supply more completely I will be happy to take the matter up with you again.

Dear Dr. Warren,

As regards Lincoln's statement that his ancestors were Pa. Quakers - I wish to investigate the possibility that either of the Mrs. Mordecai's Lincoln's had parents who were Quakers and also the possibility that Mrs. John Lincoln might have had Quaker ancestors - so I'd appreciate if you were to send me the maiden names of those three women - and any information you may have about Mrs. John Lincoln's native "land".

I heard you say once that Pres. Lincoln's grandfather might have originally married a Boone. Indeed the Encyclopedia of my youth did so state. You stated, as I recall, that the injection of the name of JOSIAH into the grandfather's children was the clue to Granddad A.Lincoln maybe having married the daughter of a Josiah Boone. Of the meager information I have of the Boone's - I find no Josiah but do observe a Joshua. If any Lincoln Lore tells of this - please send me a copy.

Lincoln's belief that his ancestors were Quakers had to be bottle-necked to him INDIRECTLY thru his grandfather who might have known that his own mother was a Quaker.

Another possibility is that the grandfather - had he married a Boone - would havetold his first children that they were of Quaker descent. His first children (being the older) might have passed THAT along to their half-nieces and half-nephews - the President's uncles and aunts.

Sincerely, David Keiser

Practically all of the material I have which would be of interest to you with respect to the Boone contact is found in Lincoln Lore number 291. We happen to have some extra copies so I am sending some along and you will find several items here of interest to you in your attempt to create a background for Lincoln's statement about the Quakers. I shall be interested indeed if you make some discoveries that are important.

Dr. Louis A. Warren.

Gentlemen,

Sometime ago I wrote you asking for certain information in the Lincoln family but your reply referred principally to Bathsheba Herring and was not in answer to what I had wanted.

The thing I want to find out is concerning the children born to Mary Lincoln (b. 9/15/1761) who married Joseph Boone, 3d (b. abt. 1756/1758). For better clarification I will sketch below how the relationship stands, and will make it as brief as possible:

Geo. Boone III

- Squire b. 11/25/1696 — Daniel Boone
- Joseph, Sr. b. 4/5/1704 — Joseph, Jr. b. abt. 1730-35 — Joseph Boone 3d b. abt. 1756-58 m. Mary Lincoln — Anna Boone 5/31/1799 et al m. Jacob Kern
- James b. 7/7/1709 — Anne b. 4/14/1737
- et al

Mordecai Lincoln b. 4/24/1686

- 2d wife Mary — Abraham b. 10/29/1736 m. Anne Boone b. 4/14/1737 (daughter of James Boone b. 7/7/1709) — Mary Lincoln b. 9/15/1761 m. Joseph Boone 3d — Who were their children besides Anna Boone b. 5/31/1799 ?
- 1st wife Hannah — John — Abraham m. Bathsheba Herring — Thomas m. Nancy Hanks — President Lincoln

There was at least one other girl and probably more girls or boys also because when Joseph Boone 3d died in 1829 he left 11 grandchildren and only one daughter, Anna who m. Jacob Kern in 1826 and had 2 children at time of her father's death. All other sisters + brothers of Anna were probably older than Anna to account for these other 9 unaccounted-for grandchildren.

Can you give me their names + birth dates + marriages + death dates?

Many thanks in advance for your kind response.

Cordially yours,

Mrs. H. A. Waltman.

P.S. Did Mordecai's 2d wife have a child named Deborah, or was Deborah a child of Hannah? d 2yr 1720

Probably more manner but nothing definite has been learned of her ....

My dear Madam:

I imagine the reason why that we did not answer your last letter more fully was because we did not have the information and neither do we have it now. The genealogy of the Lincoln family makes this citation after the name Mary, daughter of Abraham and Anne Boone Lincoln. It gives the date of Mary's birth and then comments, "probably never married but nothing definite has been learned of her".

You have already discovered that she married Joseph Boone and we have no information whatever about her family.

You inquire about Deborah. Deborah was the child of Mordecai and Hannah Saltar Lincoln. She died at 2 years of age in New Jersey in 1720.

LINCOLNS AND BOONES

The bicentennial anniversary of Daniel Boone's birth was celebrated throughout the nation on November 2, 1934. Possibly the interest aroused in the history of the Boone family on this occasion may encourage a more detailed study than has yet been made relating to the contacts and inter-marriages of the Lincolns and Boones.

There has been much speculation about the name of Abraham Lincoln's paternal grandmother and there is some evidence that she was a Boone. The fact that there has been, as yet, no conclusive proof introduced, which would identify without question the family from which Abraham Lincoln's grandmother Lincoln came, should spur the Boone family on to further efforts with respect to this traditional relationship.

First Generation

When Mordecai Lincoln and his wife, Hannah Saltar Lincoln, settled in Berks County, Pennsylvania, about 1827, they found, living close by their newly-acquired property, the family of George and Deborah Howell Boone. There were also other Boone families in the community, including Squire Boone and James Boone, brothers of George.

Mordecai Lincoln made his will in 1735, and, after naming his second wife, Mary Robeson Lincoln, as the executor of the estate, he concluded, "and my loving friends and neighbors Jonathan Robeson and George Boone, trustees to assist my wife." When the Lincoln estate was appraised, Squire Boone, father of Daniel Boone, the Kentucky pioneer, served as one of the appraisers. There is much evidence that Mordecai Lincoln, first Pennsylvania ancestor of President Lincoln, and Squire Boone, father of Daniel Boone, were close friends.

Second Generation

There were nine children in Mordecai Lincoln's family —four boys: John, Mordecai, Thomas, and Abraham; and five girls: Deborah, Hannah, Mary, Anne, and Sarah. In the George Boone family there were ten children—five boys: George, William, Joseph, Jeremiah, and Hezekiah; also five girls: Mary, Hannah, Deborah, Dinah, and Abigail. Squire Boone's family consisted of eleven children —seven sons: Israel, Samuel, Jonathan, Daniel, George, Edward, and Squire; also four daughters: Sarah, Elizabeth, Mary, and Hannah. In the family of James Boone there were twelve children—six boys: James, John, Judah, Joshua, Moses, and Nathaniel; also six girls: Anne, Mary, Martha, Dinah, Rachel, and Hannah.

It is not surprising, with such a large number of young people in these two families being thrown together, to find in the second generation of Lincolns and Boones much inter-marrying. On May 26, 1748, William Boone, son of George Boone, married Sarah Lincoln, daughter of Mordecai Lincoln; and on July 10, 1760, Abraham Lincoln, son of Mordecai Lincoln, married Anne Boone, daughter of James Boone. It is this last wedding which has greatly confused Lincoln students, and Abraham and Anne Boone Lincoln have often been referred to as the grandparents of the President.

For the purpose of this study there are three other young people among this large group who are of more importance than those just mentioned. The first, Daniel Boone, was sixteen years of age in 1750 when his father, Squire Boone, moved his family to a point near Winchester, Virginia, about one hundred and fifty miles southwest of the Berks County location. Three years later, just before Daniel became of age, the family migrated to North Carolina. The two others, Mordecai Lincoln's son, John, and George Boone's son, Josiah, were brought together in what might be called the first Lincoln-Boone migration.

John Lincoln married Rebecca (Flowers) Morris on July 5, 1744; and six years later Josiah Boone married, according to our best information, Hannah Hite or Holman. Possibly there was an earlier marriage than this as the history of Josiah Boone is largely based on tradition. Of this fact we are certain, that both John Lincoln and Josiah Boone migrated to Virginia about 1767 and established themselves on Linville Creek in what is now Rockingham County. Here they remained as neighbors for about ten years before the Kentucky migrations began. Josiah's land was sold to Michael Shanks on March 14, 1777, and three years later part of the property which John Lincoln had entered was sold to the same Michael Shanks. It is through the contacts of the children of these two neighbors that we hope there may be found some evidence of an inter-marriage which will identify the grandmother of President Lincoln.

In an autobiographical sketch prepared by President Lincoln in 1860 he stated that his ancestors had come from Berks County, Pennsylvania; but he could trace them back no further than his Grandfather Abraham Lincoln for whom he was named. He also stated in this sketch that "The family were originally Quakers though in later times they have fallen away from the peculiar habits of that people." Historians have been unable to discover that any of Lincoln's male ancestors in the Lincoln line were Quakers, so the supposition is that Abraham Lincoln, the pioneer, married into a Quaker family.

Third Generation

John Lincoln, the oldest son of Mordecai Lincoln, had nine children—five boys: Abraham Isaac, Jacob, John, and Thomas; also four girls: Hannah, Lydia, Sarah, and Rebecca. It is Abraham Lincoln, the oldest son, born in 1744, with whom we are chiefly concerned because he was the grandfather of the President. He migrated with his father to Linville Creek, Virginia, in 1768; and two years later on June 9, 1770, his marriage is recorded on the records of Augusta County, Virginia, but the name of the bride is not given. It is known that at the time of his death, in 1786, he was married to a woman whose first name was Bathsheba and whose maiden name is said to have been Herring. There is also a tradition that she was the second wife of the pioneer and not the woman he married in 1770 nor the mother of the first four children of Abraham.

In the autobiographical sketch mentioned above, the President named the children of his Grandfather Abraham as follows: Mordecai, Josiah, Thomas, Mary, and Ann. The name Josiah is not found among the ancestors of the Lincolns; but, inasmuch as Josiah Boone had lived close to Abraham Lincoln's father in Berks County, Pennsylvania, and was also a close neighbor on Linville Creek in Virginia at the time Abraham Lincoln was married, the supposition has been that Abraham Lincoln may have married one of Josiah Boone's daughters, hence the introduction of the name Josiah into the Lincoln family. Very little is known about the family of Josiah Boone, and no complete list of his children is available.

There is one tradition in the Boone family, that Lincoln married Hannah Winters, daughter of Ann Boone Winters, the sister of Daniel Boone. This story was published in Galaxey Magazine for January, 1877.

Another Boone tradition found in Waddel's "Annals of Augusta County" claims that Elizabeth, daughter of Ann Boone Winters, rather than Hannah Winters, married Lincoln. The identity of the Ann Boone as a sister of Daniel Boone lacks confirmation, and one authority comes to the rescue by claiming that Ann was an aunt instead of a sister of Daniel Boone.

Of this fact we are certain, that a William Winters was living on Linville Creek in Virginia, close by the family of Josiah Boone and John Lincoln, so that it may be possible that John Lincoln's son, Abraham, married a Winters, whose mother was a Boone, which would give the desired Quaker background.

Dear Dr. Warren:

It was a pleasure for me to have had a short visit with you again. Your talk on Lincoln's Gettsburg Address was indeed most interesting and enjoyable and your analysis of it was, in my opinion, sound and penetrative.

George Gund and I rode back together from this meeting and I took the liberty of telling George that I thought that all of your talks should be recorded for the permanent files of the Foundation and for play-back, in the more widespread use of your addresses both now and in the more distant future.

I am pleased indeed that you have in mind giving your readers and the public the plat showing Thomas Lincoln's neighbors at the time Abraham Lincoln was born. I have no knowledge of Gabriel Kirkpatrick's family background, but naturally, would conclude it to be a good one, inasmuch as he married one of the daughters of my great great grandparents, Samuel Boone, Jr. and Jane Foulke Hughes.

Jane Foulke Hughes was a granddaughter of Edward Foulke who came to this country in the early 17th century and settled in Gynn-Ed township near Philadelhia. It has been said that he has left one of the most important genealogy extant in this country. I have all these facts at home as well as some data of the Hughes family and of course of the Merrifield family. Two of the Merrifield brothers, my grandfather, Colonel Fielding Merrifield and my great uncle, Dr. Samuel Boone Merrifield married the only two daughters of Dr. John Bemiss. The latter was held to be one of Kentucky's most learned men and when at the height of his medical career, took up the study of Theology and was ordained a Presbyterian Minister. He died in 1851, the same year in which Henry Clay died. An old aunt told me, some 40 years ago, Henry Clay used to visit Dr. John Bemiss.

Dr. John Bemiss rode out to Kentucky on horseback about 1801 from New York state. His wife was born in Westchester County, New York. She was a Miss Elizabeth Bloomer and was spoken of as being highly cultured and well educated.

One of Dr. John Bemiss's sons, Dr. Samuel Merrifield Bemiss became a great physician and had the distinction of having General Robert E. Lee as his patient during the Civil War - reference is made to him in Freeman's Life of Lee. After the Civil War he left Kentucky and went to New Orleans where he attained national stature. Dr. Samuel Boone Merrifield was an important physician of his community and was born in 1788. He graduated from Transylvania University, and was in the War of 1812.

There was another son of Alexander Hamilton Merrifield and wife, Rachael Boone, who had a colorful career, William Jefferson Merrifield. He was a member of the Kentucky Legislature, studied law under Ben Hardin, who, as you know, had been Governor of the State and U. S. Senator and was engaged to marry his daughter. He was massacred with Colonel Fannin's men at Goliad in the Texas Revolt in 1836.

Samuel Boone, Jr., a first cousin of Daniel Boone, whose two daughters were neighbors of Thomas Lincoln at the time of Abe's birth, lived at Frederick, Maryland, at the time of the Revolutionary War and he and his wife put their gold money into a Gun Lock Factory and afterwards were repaid in Continental money. I have a copy of a letter which he wrote to the Committee of Safety of Maryland having advised how many gun locks he then had ready to deliver. After the Revolutionary War, Squire Boone, Daniel's brother, induced his first cousin to come to Kentucky and thus, the earliest location I have of that branch of my family and the Merrifield was at "Painted Post", Squire Boone's Station, which afterwards became Shelbyville, Kentucky.

My great grandfather, Reverend George Lawson Rogers, who performed the second marriage ceremony of Thomas Lincoln, lived at Elizabethtown, Kentucky. He had three notable wives; the first wife (my great great grandmother) was Jane Breckenridge Floyd. The Floyds were an aristocratic family. They came over to this country in their own boat. It was her first cousin, John Floyd, who became Governor of Virginia and as U. S. Senator was characterized as the father of the Oregon territory by reason of his great persistancy in asserting our rights to that territory. In turn, it was his son, who was Secretary of War at the outbreak of the Civil War. My great great grandmother Floyd's brother, Charles Floyd was third in command of the Meriwether-Lewis Expedition and died on the Expedition.

It was through the Floyds that I inherited Indian blood, through the wife of William Floyd, a grandmother of Jane Breckinridge Floyd. He had married an Abidiah Davis, whose father, as I recall it was Richard Davis. The same Davis family from which Jefferson Davis descended, which may also account for his high cheek bones and many of their descendants are among the distinguished early families of Virginia.

Reverend George Lawson Rogers was the son of a Revolutionary War soldier, Edward Rogers and whose wife was Elizabeth Hathaway. She, as I recall, was a daughter of an Episcopal Bishop of Virginia. These Rogers' were the same Rogers as the wife of General George Rogers Clark.

Reverend George Lawson Rogers has stated that he descended from John Rogers, the martyr. It appears to me that Thomas Lincoln and his son Abraham Lincoln must have come in contact with some most interesting and worthwhile people of inspiring family background.

After William Jefferson Merrifield was massacred, two poems were written about him - one by Ben Hardin's daughter and the other by a daughter of Governor Duvall. You will recall that Governor Duvall had not only been Governor of Kentucky but was the first Governor of the territory of Florida.

I didn't intend to write to you so fully, especially "off the cuff" and on my first day back from a trip to New York but the fact that you indicated that you were going to publish that plat has prompted me to give you this general information.

You will recall that when LaFayette visited Kentucky, after the Revolutionary War, he was astounded at the culture and learning he found there. Anyone who knows the early history of Kentucky is similarly impressed and perhaps more so, with respect to Bardstown and its vicinage.

I hope you continue in good health and that the next time you are in Cleveland, you will visit me at my home.

My dear Mr. Merrifield:

Your letter of March 21 has been read with a great deal of interest and I am pleased indeed to add it to my Kentucky source material which emphasises the neighbors of Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln.

In the near future I plan to publish in Lincoln Lore a map of the territory where Lincoln was born showing the various propertyholders which I think will be of interest to all Lincoln students. While living at Hodgenville I platted almost the entire countryside for four or fives miles around the Lincoln birthplace farm but of course I shall have to confine myself to a somewhat smaller radius.

It was very good indeed to see you again at Cleveland and I am certainly appreciative of the complimentary words about my address.

I believe that we plan to do something about having a few of these various speeches I made put on a tape recording or perhaps better still on discs for use on radio or school groups meetings.

Dear Dr. Warren:

Upon my return on yesterday from a three days stay in Kentucky, I find your letter of the 24th inst.

You will have a general interest in my trip to Kentucky: the old home in which I was born and what remains of the original acreage was up for public sale on Saturday last, in the matter of settling an estate. I thought I might buy it but did not. However, while in Bloomfield, Nelson County, I again looked over the beautiful home which Dr. Samuel Boone Merrifield built in 1820 and I have an eye on that and if I should again have it in Merrifield possession, I would look forward to entertaining you there. I know many illustrious Kentuckians had enjoyable times in this home: the Hardins, Wickliffes, Rowans, etc., and George D. Prentiss, the editor that first brought the Louisville Courier Journal into great high favor and who, as you may recall, came from Connecticut to Kentucky for the purpose of writing the life of Henry Clay.

I would greatly appreciate your sending me the larger platted area around the Lincoln birthplace farm, with the names of the property owners. There may be names which I may be able to identify. There is much in my family files about Kentucky and Kentuckians. It will take me considerable time to cover this data and I hope to do this before too long.

With respect to your recordings, I think you could find a ready sale for many of them all over the country. There is a growning demand for recording machines. We are having very satisfactory growing sales of them here at the store. I have had one for several years and naturally I would purchase your recordings, if and when they became available. It would constitute a wonderful by-product advertisement for the Lincoln Life Insurance Company.

Adverting to my letter of the 21st inst., there are two corrections which I would appreciate your making in it. Jane Breckinridge Floyd was my great grandmother and not great great grandmother and General George Rogers Clark's wife was not a Rogers but his mother was and he was a cousin of Reverend George Lawson Rogers.

I hope to have the pleasure of visiting with you at your museum and library sometime.

At last I have found the long lost mat that I have been looking for ever since I came back from Cleveland and, of course, it popped up in a most unexpected place.

These plats I made thirty-five years ago so they are not very fresh in mind but they do show the original owners of the tracts of land adjacent to the Lincoln farm.

Of course, these farms were split up into smaller areas but I imagine the Merrifield property remained in the family for many many years.

I have not forgotten my promise to publish at some convenient time a little plat of the country adjacent to the Lincoln farm.

We do have a microfilm copy of the land transactions in Larue County Court House which bear upon the Lincoln birthplace farm.

I do trust that some day you may have an opportunity to stop off in Fort Wayne and go over our Kentucky records which I am sure you would find very interesting.

Enclosed for the Archives is a copy of the April 1972 issue of BOONE PIONEER ECHOES, with quotes from the Supreme Court document which proves that Hezekiah Boone of Carter County, Tennessee and Woodford County, Kentucky was my great-great-great-grandfather.

It has been suggested that his wife's name was Abigail--so there still may be a connection with the Lincoln family.

Last winter I noticed the interview on TV when you were in Kansas City for a lecture. I am sure you are most pleasant to visit with in person.

Thomas departed this life and your complainants upon their Bill filed revived the said suit and the same being in progress the said Hezekiah also departed this life, leaving Solomon Boone, Hiram Boone, Mordicai Boone, Isaiah Boone, Hezekiah Boone, Abigail Smith the wife of Humphrey Smith, Sally McIlyea the wife of John McIlyea, Elizabeth Harris the wife of Richard Harris, Deborah Cunningham the wife of William Cunningham his children and heirs at law.

Hezekiah's place in the Boone genealogy is clearly indicated by the following quote from page 15:

This defendant further avers that Hezekiah Boone is the uncle of the complainant and that the complainant has never made any demand of him for payment for about or near twenty years. He further states as he is informed & believes that the father of the complainant (was) William Boone, (who) was executor or administrator of Hezekiah Boone's father & that on the death of the father of the complainant, the complainant became his executor and that neither the father of the complainant or complainant himself ever distributed or paid Hezekiah Boone any part of his father's estate, altho he was entitled to a considerable sum equal perhaps to the purchase money for the land which was understood to go in payment.

BOONE INDICES HONORS DEDICATED TYPIST OF BOONE RECORDS

On motion by the President at the January meeting, the Historian made an announcement that the index card files shall be known as THE SAREPTA A. HASTAIN BOONE FILE INDICES.

Cousin Sarepta has made a reality several thousand typed records that are now filed alphabetically containing Boone data. These are from several dozen books and many genealogical magazines, which have been copied at the library to add material not in our records.

An index has been talked about for more than half the time this association has existed, but no one ever began. Just the mention of the idea to Cousin Sarepta and a few records to start typing, and each week several hundred cards are ready to file.

I only wish the file had been started ten years ago, as enough material becomes available each year to keep a person busy, without answering letters. It will be much easier in the future to check a few places and know if we have the information that is requested.

The files are the property of the BOONE FAMILY RESEARCH ASSOCIATION, and shall be in the custody of the currently elected Historian, and shall go to the next elected Historian.

A unique folder was received about the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Austerman, of San Bernardino, Calif., which occurred August 23, 1971. The photographs of the couple --then and now--are reproduced along with the clipping which described the wedding. We wish also to add our congratulations, a wee bit late.

BOONE MARRIAGE INDEX

Source: THE SAREPTA A. HASTAIN BOONE FILE INDICES: BOONE MARRIAGE INDEX.

The information available on the following listed marriages, may be obtained by sending a POSTPAID self-addressed envelope to the Historian, Louis R. Boone, Claridge Hotel, 1004 Locust St., Kansas City, Missouri 64106. Please allow six weeks for a reply.

The marriages are copied from recently printed genealogical magazines and books of marriage records--most during the last five years. Over 80% of these records were not previously available for our research.

Also important unpublished marriages are included by the courtesy of Mrs. Dorothy Watkins for Indiana, Mrs. Delores DeWitt for North Carolina, and Mr. Melvin B. Goe for Missouri.

The spelling in the original records may be listed as Boon, Boone, and a few other variations. Similar names of Boones are grouped together, as Ann, Anna, and Annie Boone. Any middle names or initials are omitted. The Boone name appears first, with the names of the husbands or wives listed under it, of person who married Ann Boone or Edward Boone. Also listed on the same line with the spouse is the year and state in which the marriage occurred, if indicated in the source.

Many named Boone married a spouse who also had the surname of Boone, and these will be crossed indexed in the following listing.

The first names of the following Boone men are not known, but the names of their wives are listed.

THOMAS BOONE'S AND GEORGE BOONE'S HEIRS FROM THE SUPREME COURT RECORD

The lineage of Thomas Boone, plaintiff, is as follows:

George Boone III m. Mary Maugridge
George Boone IV m. Deborah Howell
William Boone m. Sarah Lincoln
Thomas Boone, died 1 November, 1823 m. Ann Tea.

Thomas Boone's Heirs vs. William Chiles et al, page 10:

To the Honorable the Judge of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kentucky in Chancery sitting, Sarah Boone & other Heirs at Law to Thomas Boone complaining shew, That their father Thomas Boone on the 25th day of January 1823 being a citizen of the state of Pennsylvania commenced his suit in Chancery in your Honorable Court against a certain Hezekiah Boone and others praying that the Defendants or such of them as held legal title should convey to him two tracts of land, as more particularly described in the said Bill. That the said Hezekiah in due form filed his answer to the said Bill. That their said ancestor Thomas departed this life and your complainants upon their bill filed revived the said suit....

The plaintiffs listed in January 1835 Term of Supreme Court were: Sarah Boone, Lincoln Boone, Richard Boone, Rebecca Boone, Jeremiah Boone, Daniel Boone, Mary Ann Boone, William Boone and Thomas Boone heirs of Thomas Boone deceased.

George Boone, brother of Daniel, at one time also owned the land, and his Simpson grandchildren are listed that were not previously known. Most of George's children did move to Missouri and are not listed below.

George Boone III m. Mary Maugridge
Squire Boone, Sr. m. Sarah Morgan
George Boone m. Nancy Linville
Sarah Boone m. Solomon Simpson
Simpson heirs listed below.

Page 20:
Your Orators would further state that George Boone whose name is mentioned with the Original Bill has long since departed this life and that his next of kin and lawful heirs are Mariam Steele, the wife of Joseph Steel his daughter, and Greenup Simpson, and Matilda, and Eliza and America and Sarah and Erasmus & George and James and Alfred Simpson his grandchildren, being the issue of his daughter and if there be other heirs of the said G. Boone your complainants are certain that they do not reside in Kentucky. Grandchildren of the said George Boone being the children of_____Simpson deceased who was a daughter of the said George and died before him, and all of whom are citizens and residents of Kentucky, except the said Greenup, Matilda, & Eliza and Simpson who are citizens and residents of the State of Illinois, and Wm. Boone a son who is a citizen and resident of Missouri upon whom his title if he had any decended as his heirs at Law. Indeed your orator has reason to believe the said George left other heirs, residents in Missouri and Illinois but their names he cannot ascertain of this however he is certain that the said George deceased has left no other heirs residents or citizens of Kentucky nor any who he can make Defendants to this case.

HEZEKIAH BOONE AND CHILDREN

Hezekiah Boone and William Boone were brothers and sons of George Boone and Deborah Howell Boone.

Fifty years of research had failed to identify Hezekiah Boone, of proof of his children. Now all speculation is ended, and the documented records are presented to all members of the Boone Family Research Association.

This is only the second lawsuit found among the Boones, but of great importance in completing an early branch of the Boone family. On another page you will find data on Thomas and George Boone's heirs also found in this suit.

The suit took place in Bourbon Circuit Court, Seventh Kentucky District, where the land was located, but originally had been "seven hundred acres of first rate land lying in Fayette County on Licking Creek betwixt John Martin's Station and Ruddell's Station, it being part of a settlement and preemption that John Martin cleared out on the half for said Reuben Searcy."

Hezekiah Boone was born in 1735 as recorded in the Exeter Monthly Meeting Minutes, as youngest child of George and Deborah Boone. (a)

Exeter Monthly Meeting held there the 28th Day of the 10th Month 1756, A Certificate being produced to this Meeting for Hezekiah Boone, was read, Signed, and the Clerk to take a Copy thereof, & send the Original to him. (a)

Hezekiah Boone was received on the above certificate by the Philadelphia Monthly Meeting and was grant a certificate on 1758, 12th month, 29th day to return to Exeter Meeting. (b)

At Exeter Monthly meeting held the 30th day of 8th month 1758 Hezekiah Boone produced a certificate to this meeting from Philadelphia Monthly Meeting date 29th of the 12 Month last which was read & received. (a)

Exeter Monthly Meeting held at Maiden Creek the 24th of the 11th Month 1763. An Essay of a testimony against Hezekiah Boone being brought to this Meeting, was several times read over...to read the same to him...and inquire of him whether he intends to appeal or not ...being by Birthright a Member... (a)

Does the above indicate the marriage of Hezekiah to a non-Quaker? No previous marriage record has been found in the Quaker Minutes.

One record is found in Culpeper County, Virginia records indicating Hezekiah was living in or near Culpeper County in 1781. (c) His brother Josiah Boone, Sr. lived in Culpeper County for about 25 years before moving to Woodford County, Kentucky.

Next is found the marriage of his son Solomon Boone, in southwest Virginia in 1793, in Wythe County, Virginia. (d)

Hezekiah Boone was living in Carter County, Tennessee in the 1790's.

Descendants of Henry Harrison Boon, Including Partial Histories on Curtner and Burgess Families, received from Merritt Anderson Boone, Post Office Box 1406, Clemson, South Carolina 29631; available for $5.00. Henry Harrison Boon was born in Tennessee on August 5, 1819 and married Malinda Curtner on September 5, 1850 Obion County, Tennessee. Descendants lived in the "Bootheel" of Missouri--Pemiscot and New Madrid Counties. The author wishes to find the ancestry and more descendants of this family. Much more knowledge on the scattered Boones of Tennessee is needed, and many of them were probably from the same ancestry.

TATTLE-TALES, Bits and Pieces About the Golden Valley is the story of Clinton, Missouri containing many early pictures. 1850 and 1860 Census of Henry County, Missouri adds to our files the Boones and related descendants living in that area.

Hezekiah Boone was listed with sons Mordecai Boone and Solomon Boone on 1798, Carter County, Tennessee tax list. (e)

Perhaps a record of Hezekiah's wife can be found in the records of Carter County. Many members of the Lincoln family--relatives of his brother William Boone's wife, Sarah Lincoln--also lived in Carter County. The Lincolns lived in the same areas of Pennsylvania and Virginia as did the Boones. This was probably the reason Hezekiah moved with the Lincolns to the extreme eastern part of Tennessee.

Hezekiah Boone received an entry to 1,200 acres of land in 1783, then described as located on Drennons Lick, in Jefferson County, Kentucky.(f) By the time he received the grant in 1796, the land was then described as in Shelby County on Six Mile Creek.(g) Again the county line had change by 1808 with the land finally in Henry County.

Indenture, September 26, 1808, between Hezekiah Boone of the County of Woodford and Isaiah Boone of the County of Woodford in consideration of the sum of five shilling current money of Kentucky... unto the said Isaiah Boone... all that tract or parcel of land being in the County of Henry on water of Six Mile Creek containing twelve hundred acres....

Hezekiah Boone and Solomon Boone first appear in the 1806 tax lists for Woodford County, Kentucky and continue through 1818. The list for 1819 is missing and Solomon was in Indiana in 1820.

Isaiah Boone began paying taxes on the 1,200 acres of land in 1809 and continued to do so through 1820. Sometimes the land was described as only 600 acres, but is later taxed for the full 1,200 acres of land.

The above land is not the land in Bourbon County involved in the law suit. Neither have Bourbon County tax lists been checked to see if Hezekiah actually lived there.

The only Isaiah Boone of Woodford County was married in 1815 to Elizabeth Brown. I knew that the Isaiah Boone who received the land was my great-great-grandfather, but was Hezekiah Boone his father? That I never expected to learn.

I ordered the record of Thomas Boone's heirs to see what it contained, and who it might help. That it contained the proof that Hezekiah Boone was my great-great-great-grandfather, and was the missing link, was a complete surprise. The record does exist, and was finally found after five years of intensive research, when all other records did not reveal the children of Hezekiah Boone.

Attention: Dr. R. Gerald McMurtry

Dear Sir:

Thank you very much for your letter and copy of the November 5, 1934 issue of LINCOLN LORE.

Also appreciated the folder on the Museum and Archives. I hope to do research, or have someone did it for me, on the Lincolns and allied familes and Kentucky material at the Archives.

It was a surprise that Josiah Boone, Sr. is so prominently mentioned in the Lincoln article. He was an ancestor of my great-grandmother Boone, as both my great-grandparents were Boone descendants. Daniel Boone (1829-1890), my great-grandfather, was probably a grandson of Hezekiah Boone, youngest brother of Josiah.

Enclosed are two Lincoln clippings and the recent BOONE PIONEER ECHOES with article on Josiah Boone, Sr. descendants, which I wish added to the Archives. It is proven from a church record that Josiah Boone, Sr. married in 1750 Hannah Henton. I think the name of Hannah Hite was in error by early researchers.

Sincerely,

Louis R. Boone

It's rather interesting to note the age range of our members. Mrs. Jessie Love was 95 on May 25th. She and her brother, Dennis Steele are great-great-grandchildren of Daniel and Rebecca (Bryan) Boone, and their great-grandfather was Daniel Morgan Boone.

The "newest" new member is Steven Dennis Boone, born May 6, 1971, to Patricia and Leon Boone, of Belton, Missouri. Steven's weight was 5 lbs. 9 oz. Uncle's Raymond and Carl Boone are members of BFRAM.

Boone genealogy covers quite a span-nearly reaching back one century--from the present mid-20th century.

Mrs. K. L. Watkins writes in her column "Climb Your Family Tree", in a recent issue of The Hancock Clarion, Hawesville, Kentucky: "Thanks to the Boone Family Research Association of Missouri, which so generously replaced all of my Boone Pioneer Echoes which were destroyed when my home burned--a couple of years ago. This association should be named the Boone Beehive. This is a hard-working, dedicated bunch of people."

JONATHAN BOONE FAMILY RECORD

Last year an important record was received from an unusual source. Mrs. Emma Wagner sent records from a book that Mrs. Moore had purchased at a sale. Upon examination these prove to be of the Jonathan Boone, son of Israel, brother of Daniel.

Alice Boone, author of Descendants of Israel Boone, has borrowed the original pages and carefully made the following transcription. Two more sons are added to Jonathan's family, while data about daughter Rachel Wilson's family was completely unknown, with many grandchilren included.

The following list of names was found on pages of an old and browned Notebook which was on a table among other papers at a Sale in Spencer, Indiana. At the time of the sale the Estate belonged to the Bank, but the name of the former owners was Robinsin.

JOSIAH BOONE, SR. OF WOODFORD CO., KENTUCKY:

THREE GENERATIONS OF HIS DESCENDANTS

The history of Josiah Boone, Sr., son of George and Deborah (Howell) Boone is given in the April and July 1966 issues of Pioneer Echoes. This article is to expand and correct data on the early generations.

Isiah Boone (1788-1851), of Woodford Co., Ky. could not be a son of Josiah Boone, Jr. The records of Woodford Co. reveal a close association of Hezekiah, Solomon, Isaiah, and Moses Boone. The facts do indicate that Josiah, Jr. had a son Josiah III, and probably George and Edward Boone were his sons--only the last two are named in the estate of Josiah Boone, Jr.

Josiah Boone, Junior's second wife, Mrs. Eleanor Adams, had a son Joel Adams. As Josiah Bryan, Sr., b. 1720 had a daughter Rebecca, b. 1739 (wife of the famous Daniel Boone), by his second wife, Alee; who must have been almost as old as Joseph, so it would be impossible that her daughter Eleanor (Bryan) Adams, could be the same as Josiah's wife, who had a child in 1815, ninety-five years later.

The generations in descent from George Boone I appear first, then name and birthdate, husband or wife, places of residence, and number of known children.

6. Deborah Boone, 1769, twin to Ruth, never married.

6. Probably Alison or Alderson Boone, died as a young man.
Josiah Boone, Jr. probably had sons; in Shelby Co., Ky.--where there are several marriages of unidentified George Boones--probably moved to Indiana.
7. ?? Edward Boone, no further record.

The record of the descendants of Josiah Boone, Sr. has been collected over more than fifty years, and there are still grandchildren and great-grandchildren who have not been located. Early research was done by Mrs. Hattie Fuqua Moody, Doctor R.N. Mayfield, and Mrs. James Spraker. More recent contributors to our knowledge of this branch of Boones includes Mrs. Emma Dunn Mastin, Mike Edgeworth, and Mrs. J. H. Buchanan.

My own research over the last seven years included trips to Frankfort, Kentucky; Seattle, Washington and nearly every Saturday spent at the Kansas City Public Library. Much letter writing is the key to finding the "lost" descendants. Following up small clues and looking the right places--while searching for other families--has filled in many missing pieces.

(The sixth installment of the "History of Mt. Horeb Church" follows. -Ed.)

"The following deacons assisted in the ordination, D. T. Millikin, S. M. Cole and Pearl Tate. Rev. W. R. Milam served the church for one year and then resigned. The next pastor was Rev. R. W. Hunley who had served as pastor years before, but was always ready to serve the church as supply or any way he could. Rev. J. M. Hawson served the church as pastor from 1919 to 1923. Rev. J. S. Keith was the last pastor of the church before Rev. Cecil Logan, who is pastor at the present time. He is liked by the church as pastor and much loved by his people. The church invited all the brethern who had served as pastors of the church and all their friends to meet with them in a homecoming of the church on the third Sunday of August 1933, the 100th anniversary of its organization. They would like to entertain their district association once more, but the chances seem to be against them on account of the location of the church. On the third Sunday in August 1933, the 100th anniversary of Mt. Horeb church was duly celebrated and it was a great day. The sisters had prepared a great feast for the people and if any one went hungry, it was their own fault.

"There was preaching in the forenoon by the pastor, Rev. Cecil Logan, after which the history of the church was read by Joe W. Tate. After the noon hour, several letters were read from past pastors who were unable to be present. Rev. J. M. Winn of Wright City, Rev. R. R. McQuie of Montgomery City, and Judge Robert Lamax of Fulton, Mo. Six ministers manely Robert C. C. Hill, James R. Tuttle, B. B. Black, Martin Luther Bibb, A. R. Cole, and R. E. Snethen have been ordained and sent out by Mt. Horeb church.

"The following named brethern have been licensed by the church to preach the gospel, Granville Nunnally, John D. Gregory, William Penn, A. R. Cole, and R. E. Snethen. The following have served from time to time as clerks of the church, Samuel Boone, Granville Nunnelly, James H. Gregory, John W. Owens, M. M. Huddleston, George C. White, E. Gregory, R. H. Tate, N. E. Thornhill, E. B. Scandland, J. P. Tate, Joe W. Tate, George W. Dutton, and H. T. Naughton. The following have served as deacons, William Hawkins, Benjamin Brashears, Jesse Van Cleve, Samuel Boone, Harrison Gregory, John W. Lewellyn, Harmon Hays, Alonzo Boone, Wm. C. Cole, Robert D. Grayham, Baswell Holt, Warren Tate, Ed Thornhill, C. B. Tate, G. W. Dutton, J. P. Tate, J. D. Cole, David Hampton, and others who failed to get their names on the register."

AT LONG LAST a book has been written which recognizes the intelligence and character which made Daniel Boone not only the renowned frontiersman, but the hero of American boyhood which he is. A husband-wife team of educators, John J. and Ina W. Van Noppen of Appalachian College, Boone, North Carolina, wrote "Daniel Boone, Backwoodsman" on the scene of Boone's encampment, now in the campus of the college, using their advantage to bring other able families into the Kentucky venture, as the Bryans, the Morgans, the Carters and many Boone connections.

WE can think of no better antidote for the current TV series called "Daniel Boone" than for the viewer afterward to read a few chapters of this refreshingly exciting and factual story, proof that fact and fiction can be joined in a successful union. The book has 224 pages, and comes in paper or cloth binding, modestly priced at $2.95 and $4.95, (add 25¢ for postage and handling). Its jacket is noteworthy. Christmas is coming! Order from the Appalachian Press, Boone, N.C.

VALUED contributions to the Boone Research Center are; "Cemetery List from Long Run Baptist Church, Jefferson County, Kentucky" from Mrs. Max Marshall, Omaha, Nebraska, and "Graves of Boones in Louisiana" sent by Mrs. Drouet W. Vidrine of Ville Platte, La. Excerpts from these appear on the preceding page. We are most grateful for these data and hope the information may prove helpful to our readers. Our sincere thanks to the donors for remembering us. An interesting side-light is that the list from Jefferson Co. was collected and compiled by the genealogy class in the high school in Anchorage, Kentucky. What an adventure in research it would be if such a course were available in our high schools! Respect for accuracy in general would surely increase and for genealogical facts in particular.

HIGHLY appreciated also is the outline "Some Harbin Family History" compiled by Mrs. Carl N. Parks of Goddard, Kansas, which is reproduced in part in this number of the SCOUT. Heretofore, little has been available to us about this family, and unfortunately much of that little has appeared confused and unsatisfactory. We hope Mrs. Parks research will clear up many moot points, and we thank Mrs. Parks for her unselfish work and generous gift.

REPORTS by members of solicitation by the unscrupulous person mentioned in an earlier number of the SCOUT who offers "just the information you need" for a fee (payable in advance!), usually more than one can afford, impels us to warn our readers once more against becoming a victim of this fraud. In a recent issue of a local paper is an article titled "Mail Fraud Schemes are 'Big Business'". The pertinent point is that the Postoffice takes an active interest in such schemes and invites the assistance of the public. For your own protection remember these things: in 1872, the Congress passed the first consumer-protection law, making it illegal to use the mails to defraud. That schemers especially like to use the mail to defraud as it keeps their victims at a distance; that every fraud is an imitation of a legitimate business(or profession); and that the Postoffice Department has a Postal Inspection Service to protect you against fraud. This service urges you NOT to send money to anybody, anywhere, for anything, unless you have checked the reputation and honesty of the person at the other end. Also remember that the ethical genealogical researcher does not solicit the individual for his business anymore than the reputable doctor or lawyer would rush to the scene of an accident to hand out his card to the victim or his family! Such solicition alone should alert the most unwary that his pocket book is about to be raided, and refuse to contribute to the huge sums (up to $1 million) collected by these "bandits"! Cut out these wise words from the Postal Inspection Service, paste them in your hat and wear it everywhere, except in bed, to remind you that what Barnum said was likely correct. But don't be one!

WITHOUT doubt, the Daniel Boone Wagon Train of North Carolina is the most unique and colorful celebration of that entire region. Organized to commemorate one of the greatest events in American History - the first crossing of the Appalachian mountains and the settlement of the land of Tennessee and Kentucky just before the Revolution, the Boone-led group of land-hungry pioneers laid the foundation for the west-ward expansion, and our present Union of fifty states. Clippings showing the 90 covered wagons, some oxen drawn, several hundred horse back riders, lurking Indians and their raid on the Train, the camping places, with barbecued chickens and meat for the hungry pioneers, have been received from Mrs. Marie Bryan Myers of North Wilkesboro, N.C. Mrs. Myers was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Association in November 1965, showing motion pictures of this colorful caravan. Her gift is much appreciated as it will greatly enrich our scrapbook material.

FROM Mrs. Earle Combs of Richmond, Kentucky, come clippings telling of the drama, "The Daniel Boone Story" shown this summer at the Indian Fort Theatre, located in the Berea College Forest, Berea, Ky. The play was written and produced by an impressive group of professionals, several Kentucky-born. We are grateful to Mrs. Combs as otherwise we would not have had this interesting information.

We find it most gratifying that many of our members are compiling brochures of their ancestry. One of these, Mrs. Henry R. Ehlers, 94 Santa Monica Way, San Francisco, California, 94127, has completed several of her lines, but needs more information on her "Torr Family" now in process. Torr descendants are invited to write Mrs. Ehlers if they wish to be included in the history. She wishes the most recent data.

THIS amusing incident is taken from the "Boone-Nall Family History" compiled by Mrs. Sally J. Dolphin of Kellogg, Idaho. Enoch Morgan Boone(Squire^5, Squire^4, George^3,) was born 16 October 1777 at Boonesborough Kentucky; married 8 February 1798, Eliza Lucy Goldman. They established a home in what is now Meade County on the Ohio River. He prospered in land and slaves. Among his children was Amanda. A young singing school teacher and Baptist preacher, James Nall, son of Capt. John Nall of the Revolution came to Meade County where his stopping place was at the home of Enoch Boone. A rapid courtship followed the meeting of Amamda and James much to her father's displeasure who did [illegible] his daughter to marry a "traipin" preacher, though James was a shoemaker b[illegible] Enoch wasted no time in sending James away with instructions "never to r[illegible] his was too much for Amanda to bear. She wept constantly for several d[illegible] father's scoldings and arguing availed him nothing. At last in desperation he mounted two of his most trusted slaves on two of his best saddle horses and instructed them to go to Nelson County, find the preacher and deliver the note giving consent to the marriage. Amanda and James were married 23 September 1822.

THE REGRETTABLE death of W. D. Kizziah, a long-time professional genealogist of Salisbury, N. C. left a gap in Rowan Co. research. However, two men well qualified for research have associated themselves to fill that breach as far as possible. James S. Brawley, city editor of the Salisbury Post for 13 years is an experienced historian and author. He is joined by Philip N. Peacock, also experienced in research, having devoted several years to the Rowan county records, especially the Boones. For details, address them, "% James S. Brawley, Box 1275, Salisbury, N.C. 28144".

Elizabeth Winter, a sister of Mrs. George Crawford, married Abraham Lincoln, the grandfather of President Abraham Lincoln.

First cousin of Daniel Boone

Alexander Crawford married Mary McPheeter. They lived in Augusta county, Va., and were the parents of William Crawford, whose wife was named Rachel. The names of William and Rachel Crawford's children were: Alexander, James, John, William, Polly, Nancy, Jenny, and Rachel.

Prior to 1778 Augusta county included Rockingham county.

LINCOLN'S GRANDSIRE

How He Settled in the Shenandoah Valley and Was Slain by Indians

In July, 1776, Daniel Boone entered in his survey book a memorandum of 1000 acres of land in the name of "Lincoln." This can hardly have been Capt. Abraham Lincoln, grandfather of the President. It was almost certainly his kinsman, Hannaniah. This man is a dim and shadowy figure in the background of the President's ancestral tradition and he may never emerge into full light. For his own reputation, that may be desirable; additional knowledge lately gained of him does not commend him to regard. But some discoveries bring him into the penumbra and disclose important data concerning the President's grandfather.

Whoever visits the home of Capt. Abraham Lincoln in the Shenandoah Valley and observes its location, fertility and steadily advancing value, wonders what evil genius lured Capt. Abraham Lincoln with his five small children and his invalid wife to surrender that attractive spot for the perils and privations of life in the Kentucky wilderness, writes William E. Barton in the New York Times magazine. The answer now appears to be Hannaniah Lincoln. He had visited Kentucky and was able to persuade Abraham to go with him to reconnoiter the land. The result was that in 1782 the Lincoln family, Abraham and his wife, Bathsheba, and their five children, Mordecai, 11 years of age; Josiah, 9; Mary, 6; Thomas, 4, and Nancy, a baby in arms, left a comfortable home and set forth on the wilderness road.

Bathsheba had been in such frail health since the birth of her last baby that she was unable to ride eight miles and back from the farm to the Courthouse to sign the relinquishment of her dower rights in the farm, nevertheless, she mounted her horse, took Nancy in her arms and little Tommy on the horse behind her and started for Cumberland Gap and the unbroken forests beyond. Posterity profited, but Bathsheba suffered, and Capt. Abraham Lincoln, the pioneer, lost his life in consequence of this migration.

March 4, 1780, there were issued to Abraham Lincoln three Treasury warrants, each acknowledging receipt of £160 Virginia money and each calling for 400 acres of land to be located in any county in Virginia, Kentucky then being such a county. As the Lincoln farm had sold for £5000, and these three large tracts cost less than £500, Capt. Abraham Lincoln was financially well ahead when he entered Kentucky. He went to land that had been standing in his name, but was not yet surveyed.

June 7, 1780, he entered 800 acres of land in Lincoln county, one of three original Kentucky counties. It was described as lying six miles below Green River Lick and including an improvement made by Jacob Gum and Owen Diver. A few days earlier he had entered 400 acres on Floyd's Fork in Jefferson county. October 12, 1784, an official survey was made of land. His patents were issued in due course.

Some time in the month of May, 1786—the exact date is not given—Capt. Abraham Lincoln was killed by an Indian on his Floyd's Fork farm. It is supposed by Lincoln students that the Floyd's Fork farm was the first Kentucky home of the Lincoln family. We have wondered why Capt. Abraham Lincoln settled on his smaller tract of land and why he made his home on an unimproved farm when the larger farm had "an improvement" which certainly included a cabin. Why did he not make his home on his Green River farm?

The answer, now for the first time available, is that he did. Documentary proof has been found that Capt. Lincoln not only made his first Kentucky home on his larger farm, but that he did not leave it until December, 1784, or January, 1785. At that time he removed with his family to the smaller farm, about fifteen miles from Louisville. He assisted in the survey of that farm, May 7, 1785, and a year later, as testified on oath by his eldest son, Mordecai, he was murdered by the Indians.

It had been to escape the Indians, who were very troublesome in the Green River country in the fall of 1784, that Capt. Lincoln withdrew to the supposedly more secure location near Morgan Hughes's fort. He hastened to complete and register his survey, so that his absence might not subject his claim to invasion, for he had been holding it by right of possession under the assignment of the Jacob Gum claim.

That was valid and would be respected so long as he were on the ground, and he was recorded as in possession, October 12, 1784. He and his family did not leave Green River till the very end of that year. He surveyed his Floyd's Fork farm, May 7, 1785, and was personally present and assisted.

BLA

Washington March 2,

Dear Sir

I thank you very much for your memorandum of the Boone-Lincoln pedigree. I held the opinion for some years that the Abraham Lincoln who married Elizabeth Winters was the grandfather of the President. But I now find that among the undoubted descendants of that Abraham L— the tradition is that their grandmother was named Mary Shipley. Mr. S. L. Hall of Missouri a grandson of Mrs. Brumfield, a daughter of the pioneer Lincoln, says the name of his great grandmother is as well known to him as any fact can be.

Graham was a common name among the Scotch and I cannot resist the conclusion that one man of that name married Mary Shipley and another married Elizabeth Hunter. But it is extremely difficult to determine, in the absence of any documents which of the two was the father of Thomas the father of the great Graham.

I would be very grateful to you if you could indicate to me any conclusive evidence on that point. You refer to Waddell's History of Augusta County, Virginia. If it is not an expensive book, could you request the publisher to send me a copy C.O.D.? If it is rare, or out of print, and you have a copy, could you send it to me by Express? I would be glad to see it, and will guarantee to return it in good order.

The matter is urgent as we must soon go to press with our first volume.

Yours very truly

John Hay

George Boon's stone ware-house at Exeter Sta., at the river landing one and half miles west of the Lincoln home, was built about 200 years ago, about the time the tp. road was built to the river from Stonersville. Observe the thick walls for protection. He owned a saw mill. I infer the other buildings lumber was used instead of stone and maybe his residence also as they are all gone in ruins. The shed roof was built about 50 years ago.

James Nevil in 1779 went to Lincoln County, Ky. Found British and Indians on the war path and the settlers preparing for their first invasion into Ohio. They burned old Chillicothe, and captured a number of horses. Killed two chiefs and a few other Indians. Then Col. Bowman returned to Harrodsburg, Ky. The Indians came back again.

Her father Henry and Sr. Fort Washington, N. Y. Sr. killed. Reg. Col. Hart, Pa., son Reuben with Capt. Sam Tate, Maj. Taul, Gen. John E. King, and Governor Shelby at Thames, after war of 1812 Reuben married Charlotte Boone, my Grandmother, at Somerset, 1814.

James Nevil born Prince William County, Va., 1741, Revolutionary war, Col. Edmonds, Capt. Martin Pickett, Bureau of Pensions, Etc.

When James Nevil and family arrived at the little place Asaphs, (afterward changed to Stanford), they began to see familiar names: Col. Daniel Boone, the surveyor, Capt. Sam Kirkham on the Grand Jury, the name of Abraham Lincoln on the court record. Jeremiah Boone making visits to the Nevil home often. There was Capt. George Mayfield and Lieut. Isaac Mayfield with the troops. I served on the Grand Jury.

Jeremiah bought three farms on Pitman Creek, N. E. Somerset, 1800.

James Nevil and wife, and Jeremiah Boone and family lived neighbors on Dix River 1789-1796. James Nevil and Sarah his wife made a court deed at Harrodsburg, Ky., for land, early days.

With the above people and others James Nevil began his pioneer life.

George Boone born 1666, son George born 1690 England, son Josiah Sr., born Pennsylvania 1726-7, died Glenn Creek 1814, five miles south of Frankfort, Ky. Married Hannah 1750.

Children: George, 1751, Noah, died young. Josiah Jr. 1758, married second time Ellenor Boone, 1815. Jeremiah Boone born February 29, 1760, Pa. Married Joyce Nevil May 9, 1787. They signed a deed for their interest in their father's estate, Josiah Boone Sr., which is on record in Versailles, Ky. 2Boone Bulletin."

A Miss Johnson, a descendant from same family as Andrew Johnson, married Mr. Joyce, daughter (Sarah) Joyce, married (James) Nevil, their daughter Joyce Nevil, married Jeremiah Boone, his daughter Charlotte gave me, 50 years ago, the Nevil family history.

Josiah Sr. married second wife 1766, Hannah Hite, Ruth born 1770, married Pluright Risk, 1790; Deborah (twin) never married. Rhhemah married William Thimpson. Allison died young; Hannah born 1786 married James Barnhill 1800. Isaiah married Eliza Brown. I believe the last two were Josiah Jr.'s children.

After the Blue Licks defeat August 19, 1782 where more than a third of the men were killed, among them being, Cols. Todd and Trigg, leaving Col. Daniel Boone in command, who ordered a retreat.

He rallied his men and called for volunteers, who enlisted by the hundreds, among them being his two young cousins, Josiah and Jeremiah Boone, who enlisted for the Expedition to join Gen. Clark,(b. 1752,) who was coming from "The Falls" to pursue the Indians to their homes in Ohio. They were completely defeated. They never came to Kentucky again.

John Mayfield, Sr., born Albemarle Co., Va. 1745 died Pulaski, Ky. 1816. Entire Revolutionary War service. Last service with Gen. Daniel Morgan, Buckingham, Va. Clarinda Pleasants (1749-1821) mar. 1767. Their son John born 1768 married Mary Wolf, Jan. 1790, (1770-1848) Her father Henry and Mr. Fort Washington, N. Y. Sr. killed. Reg. Col. Hart, Pa., Son Reuben with Capt. Sam Tate, Maj. Taul, Gen. John E. King, and Governor Shelby at Thames. After war of 1812 Reuben married Charlotte Boone, my Grandmother, who related the above Joyce Nevil family history to me 1881. She also said her father was a second cousin of Daniel Boone She was about 78 years old, and further said the above was told her when she was a child.

James Nevil and wife, and Jeremiah and family lived neighbors on Dox River, 1789-96. James Nevil and Sarah his wife made a court deed at Harrodesburg, Ky. for land, early day. James Nevil b. Prince William Co. Va. 1741, Rev. War, Col. Wm. Edmonds, Capt. Martin Pickett, Bureau of Pensions, etc., 1779 went to Lincoln County, Ky. Arriving at the little place Asaps, (afterward changed to Stanford,) I began seeing names familiar to me. Col. Daniel Boone, the surveyor, Capt. Sam Kirkham on the Grand Jury. The name Abraham Lincoln on the Court record. Jeremiah Boone making visits to the Nevil home often. There was Capt. George Mayfield, and Lieut. Isaac Mayfield with the troops. I served on the Grand Jury. The above is what I, (James Nevil,) began his pioneer life with.

FOOD FOR REFLECTION.

Grand [illegible] Aug 2 1928

Miss Joan Boone, of Texas.

Miss Joan Boone called on the editor Saturday and solicited magazine subscriptions. We dodged the issue with the information that we often forwarded subscriptions for our patrons and obtained our own needs. Then the following story was unfolded, which we think will interest our readers:

Miss Boone is the fourth generation from Daniel Boone, the noted explorer and hunter, and she has numerous relics handed down from this famous personage. She was just twenty years of age Saturday and has made her own way since fourteen years of age. Her parents married in Spain, her mother being a Spaniard. Her mother died when Miss Boone was two weeks of age and her father died when she was fourteen, and on Christmas day. Her father was her great "pal." She has graduated from a high school and a two-year junior college in Texas. She has won a cash prize of $400 in a Civic Betterment Contest and plans to attend a course in Interior Decoration at Indianapolis the coming season. Then she intends to go abroad for further study in her chosen field of endeavor.

She has visited every state in the Union save four, and is likely in Illinois today—one of the four missed.

She states that Daniel Boone and Kit Carson were first cousins; and she gave a very interesting account of features in the life of each one. She states she has never received any conduct not appropriate to a lady in all her travels. Her manner is reticent, yet frank; easy of approach and yet with reserve and affableness. We enjoyed her short visit and trust our little account will help some other young person to aspire to greater ideals. If one who has such handicaps, and we have not given all, can attain to such standards, what can others do?

284. Bryant — Elisha (573a). You may find something of Elisha Bryant from Mrs. Robert Woerner, Superior, Neb., who has a Bryant line through Anna Bryant, who married Elkanah Bush at Stanford, Ky., March 2, 1861. She was born March 2, 1844, at Stanford, Ky., daughter of Reuben Bryant, son of George Bryant, who was the son of John Bryant, a revolutionary soldier. (See "The Bryant Family," by Maria Gregg.) Elkanah Bush was the son of Pleasant Bush, and his wife, Jane Bush, a cousin, and daughter of Capt. "Billy" Bush, who was born June 26, 1746, Orange county, Virginia, died July 25, 1815, Clark county, Kentucky, married Frances Sandy Burrus, born Jan. 31, 1762, died Dec. 3, 1828, married Dec. 9, 1778. Children: William T., married Sarah ———, thought to have married twice; Elkanah, married Polly ———; William A., never married; Cynthia, married Thomas Bush; Frances, married George Giddings; Polly, married Benjamin Hieronymous; Lucena, married Christopher Marrow; Jane, born Aug. 21, 1800, died Aug. 21, 1852, Clark county, Kentucky, married Pleasant Bush, born, Aug. 20, 1791, died Sept. 2, 1853, Clark county; Thomas J., never married. William Bush lived during the revolution at Fort Boonesboro, Kentucky. His name is found last on the muster roll of Richard Clark, Dec. 31, 1782. Capt. "Billy" Bush was one of the men selected by Daniel Boone to cut the road to Boonesboro, Ky., through the wilderness in 1775. He also was one of the surveyors of Clark county, Kentucky, and erected the first brick house in Clark county, Kentucky. He was the owner of 1,100 acres of land, extending from the Kentucky river six or seven miles north. One of the trustees of the town of Boonesboro. This Bush line goes back to John Bush, born about 1650, Spottsylvania county, Virginia; died 1746, Orange county, Virginia.—Mrs. Robert Woerner, Superior, Neb.
